

ART OF COACHING PODCAST™ EPISODE 99
STEVE MOSER: GETTING THE JOB & NAILING YOUR INTERVIEW

In this episode, Steve offers recommendations for making your resume stand out. Based on these suggestions, is it better to have a resume that's clean and simple or one that's colorful, unique and adorned with bells and whistles? What are 2 other tips he suggests for making a resume memorable?

When creating your resume, it's helpful to list qualifications or undertakings that differentiate you from applicants with the same job title (where have you gone above and beyond?). What would you list here, what differentiates you?

Brett calls social media, "your resume to the world". Is your social media presence something you are proud of? Would you be comfortable with a future employer seeing it? Why or why not?

According to Brett and Steve, what is the most important word in hiring? What are a few ways to judge this quality in an organization?

Do you practice or prepare for interviews? How? Did you learn anything in this episode that will help you prepare for one in the future?

Besides getting you in the door, how can authentic networking help you in the interview process? When should you not network?

ABOUT

Join us as we dive more deeply into what it takes to change attitudes, outcomes & behaviors across a variety of world-class environments. Our guests include a wide range of professionals ranging from coaching, law enforcement, scientists, managers, military and entrepreneurs.

While I may originally be a strength and conditioning coach by trade- my work now spans across the corporate realm, military setting and beyond. If you work with people in any capacity and are fascinated by what makes them tick, this show is for you!

Each episode is packed with tactical insights as we prioritize providing you with key take-aways, instead mass produced "surface level" advice. Expect to be challenged, expect to be surprised and expect to maybe find a few laughs along the way as well.
